FUNERAL REFORM

It is not often that from beneath the coffin lid any of our fellow-citizens gather fame. Dn. Mariano Saavedra, whose funeral took place yesterday, has, by a simple paragraph in his wil, added character to his ashes, and posthumous renown to his much-revered name.

He directed that at his funeral only his children and grandchildren should attend, thus nipping in the bud all 'explotaciones' of coachmen, hearsemen, mourners and mourning horses. Who, that has of late attended any of what may be termed High Life funerals, has not remarked the rapidly increasing ostentation of trappings of woe on the horses, and even the coachmen's hat bands: Only the other day a funeral passed down Calle Florida that astonished us with the magnificence of its get-up. The figure of the Angel of Death on the top of the hearse was in consonance with the inky garments of the driver, who held a deeply fringed mourning handkerchief to his eyes. As for the horses, the hearse being a coach-and-four, the leaders marched at such a measured pace along the tramway rails in the street that, to the casual observer, it seemed as if they accepted the tramway horn as muffled drums, beating funeral marches to the grave. Over their harness hung deeply fringed, tear-starting coffin cloths with an initial, in a huge gold letter, of the name of the corpse. To say that the horses, as they moved along, wept might appear a Greek exaggeration, but certainly they appeared to the people on the sidewalk to well know that they were not going to Palermo Park.

Twenty years ago the expenses of a funeral in this town were so moderate that people could afford to die; but to-day many children have often to be robbed of their paltry heritance to pay for these absurdly grand funerals which few of us can afford, which inspire no revercance, and only cater to a species of High Life vanity that even survives the very grave. Every sensible man who has read the paragraph in the late Mr. Saavedra's will, limiting the funeral procession to his children and grandchildren, will approve of his great decision of character in thus courageously attacking, even in his coffin, an abuse which all admit, all complain of, but so few, very few, even in the enjoyment of health and strong vigorous life, have the courage to attack.

With regard to funeral ceremonies in the churches, we also think they are carried to an extravagance that often taxes the pockets of widows and children to pay for such honours. In deep affliction and unutterable woe, religion, since the world began, affords perhaps the greatest of all consolations; no man will censure the custom of obsequies which religion establishes; but even in this sacred respect to human feeling how often do we not witness a display in our churches of a funeral magnificence which we all but too well know the family of the deceased can barely, if at all, afford. The ostentation of some of our funeral ceremonies clashes with those better feelings of which a silent prayer for a deceased friend is a full requital. No man will prohibit prayers for deceased friends or relations; it would be the irony of reform to attempt such a step; but at the same time we are at liberty to protest against the expenditure of thousands and thousands of dollars which perhaps the relations can ill afford.

On the grave of Mr Saavedra we lay an immortelle that will never fade, interwoven as it is with the blessings and the thanks of the community in which he so long lived and played such high and distinguished roles.

THE ASSETS OF AUSTRALIA.

We believe the following paper on the assets and liabilities of the Australian colonies will be read with interest by the British public in the Plate, since, although oceans divide us, there is always a certain similarity of assets in the two countries. Many of the remarks bear well on the River Plate, and we believe that, if this country continues in peace, and our immigration returns keep up, we shall soon beat Australia in many other items than in the number of our sheep, our cattle, and our immigrant arrivals:—

A very interesting paper was read last week by Sir Francis Dillon Bell before the Royal Colonial Institute. As the representative in London of one of the two most heavily indebted countries in the world—that is, if we apply the population test pure and simple as a measure of the burden of such indebtedness—the Agent-General for New Zealand might be considered to be not an altogether impartial exponent of the conditions of Australasian solvency. Still, while we may here and there be inclined to question the figures, and the deductions from those figures, which the writer has indulged in, it does not prevent our regarding the paper as an interesting treatise upon a subject of deep and steadily-growing import. It would, perhaps, not be difficult to show the futility of any strict contrast between the national revenues of the mother country (which, for instance, do not include railway receipts) and those of the Australasian colonies, which do include the gross earnings of those and other public works, for which, indeed, their debts have mainly been incurred; but any such criticism would not affect the wonderful growth of wealth in these colonies, nor detract from the burdens which that very growth of wealth has entailed. We read of the Australias that "the population increased more rapidly than the country was opened up. The more money was spent on our railways, the more was wanted for roads and bridges at their side; the people demanded their post-offices, their telegraphs, their courts of justice, their hospitals, their schools, and they insisted on having these all at once. We (the Australians) not only had to come to you for more and more money, but every Government on the other side of the world had a hard task to keep pace with the progress and the impatience of the people. The colonists will suffer no barrier to stop them from going on to conquer the wilderness.....and to fulfil the law of our existence we must have money.....but we recognise your right to ask what we have to show for the money you have already lent us, and what is our real power to repay it." The whole purpose of Sir Francis Dillon Bell's paper is to answer these questions, and to prove that for every sovereign lent, the Australias are able to show in return more sovereigns of additional assets.

At the outset, we must confess to being almost startled upon learning that there are altogether more than £260,000,000 of British money embarked in Australian enterprise, and that our capitalists derive some £18,000,000 a year (say, 7 per cent.) interest therefrom. About eighteen months ago, we were at some pains to estimate the amounts of Australian securities actually held in this country, and we placed them at about £130,000,000. Allowing roughly for £20,000,000 increase since then, we should find £150,000,000 represented by Government loans, banks, land and other companies' shares, bonds, and deposits, city loans, and similar "joint-stock" contributions. But Sir Francis Bell goes further than this, and allows for their commercial and private indebtedness as well. It is surprising to learn that this should add another £110,000,000 or so to such figures. But we have no means either to prove or disprove the calculation now made; and it is to be regretted that a matter affording such a strange insight into the conditions of Australasian economy should have had to be dismissed in half-a-dozen sentences. It is somewhat the same with the following tables:

ASSETS OF THE AUSTRALASIAN COLONIES (exclusive of Government Lands).

	1882.	1870.	1860.
	£	£	£
Freehold lands..	182,000,000	85,000,000	42,000,000
Sheep & cattle..	66,000,000	47,000,000	29,000,000
Houses..	178,000,000	98,000,000	58,000,000
Railways	58,000,000	27,000,000	7,000,000
Merchandise and other assets...	114,000,000	66,000,000	49,000,000
	598,000,000	323,000,000	192,000,000

PRESENT ANNUAL INCOME OF THE AUSTRALASIAN COLONIES.

	£
Pastoral pursuits	30,000,000
Agriculture	37,000,000
Rents of property	12,000,000
Manufactures	11,000,000
Profits of commerce	10,000,000
Mining	8,000,000
Railways	5,000,000
Banking and other sources	10,000,000
Gross income	133,000,000
Deduct Government revenue	£21,000,000
Expenditure (of nearly 3,000,000 inhabitants)	85,000,000
	106,000,000
Savings	27,000,000

Here the income is set down at some £45 per head; the entire annual expenditure at £36 per head, and the savings at over £9 per head; and these savings, if representing an average, are certaily very remarkable. It is difficult for any person not having official information to criticise the methods employed in compiling these tables. Roughly, however, in estimating the assets, we find the sheep set down at 10s per head, cattle at £3 per head, and horses at £5 per head. Railways are taken at about cost price; and we may take it that freehold lands and houses have been allowed for in the same way. "Merchandise and other assets" in the first table is, however, an item which must have caused a great deal of difficulty, and we suppose the £114,000,000 must to a considerable extent be conjectural. In the table setting forth the annual income it will be seen that £76,000,000, or over 57 per cent. of the total £133,000,000, is covered by squatting and farming produce.

Here we find the estimated values given:—

Animal Produce—

	£
Wool	19,604,000
Meat and increase of live stock	9,200,000
Butter, milk, &c.	6,100,000
Tallow, hides, &c.	4,200,000

400,000 tons potatoes	1,600,000
6 million tons hay	15,140,000
2 million gallons wine	185,000
Fruits and vegetables	6,830,000

LONDON LETTER.

(From our own Correspondent.)

December 24, 1882.

The Calendar has its uses, and even Christmas time serves as a meridian line to measure our progress. "Here we are again"—thirty-five millions of men, women and children waiting for the final transformation scene, and as busy as bees, as if our salvation depended upon half-yearly meetings of shareholders. But on the Stock-Exchange they have been doing little or nothing for weeks, and city articles are even duller than the rest of a newspaper. Except when you take a hansom, and get jammed in the city streets at every turn, you would think people lived upon suction, as too many of our friends do. The country, however, is full of life. Tin plates have been in difficulties, and there have been failures in the iron trade; but, as the train sweeps past, the bankrupts are forgotten like cinders on the line. The signals are not against us, and at present no one fears a crash.

The railway companies in the Lancashire districts have been frightened into fair dealing by the prospect of Liverpool and Manchester Canal schemes and Plate-ways. The carrying companies between the two cities are about to reduce their rates. The reduction takes place on the 1st of January, and will affect bales and cases of manufactured goods sent from Manchester for shipment at Liverpool, as well as cotton, timber, deals, &c., sent from Liverpool to Manchester and other towns. Still, it is a strong argument in favour of State management, as against the present monopoly of the big lines of railway, that it should require a threat of making a canal to the Mersey to relieve Manchester merchants from a system of overcharges that must have been little less than robbery.

Amid the general throb of life and invention, even acrostatics have not been neglected. Last week at Hendon a most successful series of experiments was made with a balloon constructed of an uninflammable material—a cloth made of asbestos and canvas covered with a fireproof solution. The balloon is of a cylindrical shape, and has a holding capacity of about 3,000 feet; attached to the neck, made of the asbestos cloth, is a copper spirit lamp. Hydrogen gas is not used. The spirit serves for inflation, which takes place in five minutes, whilst with gas it would have taken some hours. The model was 30 feet in height, and nearly as large as an ordinary balloon. The additional advantages are the cheapness as compared with gas, and the portability of the spirit. Should the invention in other respects prove a working success, the new balloon will be utilised for military purposes as well as by explorers.

In to-day's Observer there is a most interesting article on the present position of electric lighting and the reasons why the progress of electricity has been so slow in superseding gas. The writer seems to think that one of the causes is the system of speculation and of selling concessions, and also the necessity of fresh legislation to meet the new conditions. The latter difficulty has been removed, and in regard to companies which purchased concessions, they were principally interested in the arc-light, whilst the more economic system is that of the incandescent light, on which the future of electric lighting depends in competition with gas for household purposes. Besides, until recently, the dynamo machines required to produce the electric current were little better than models. The writer thinks that the Edison machines have now been far surpassed by the Gordon machine, of which I gave you an account some time ago. The disadvantage of that machine may be that it is what is called an alternate current machine, not so well adapted without another mechanism for the transmission of power to feed accumulators or secondary batteries. As for these, says the writer, there is not a single one in the market that is at all perfect. He seems to think the best are the Fitzgerald-Crompton and the Sellon-Volckmar batteries. As to the question of cost, he takes into consideration the saving incurred from the harmlessness of the electric light compared with gas, which injures books, pictures, ceilings and furniture. The electric light produces no heat, has no injurious effects on the atmosphere, and can be adapted to a perfect system of ventilation, and will introduce much needed reforms in housebuilding as regards health, artistic appearance and economy. The absolute comparison of cost with gas is not yet fairly estimated, but, according to late calculations, the estimate is in favour of electricity. The cost of gas being .1900 pence per hour with 8½ per cent. profit, and electricity the same with 21 per cent. profit, leaving a fair margin to cover items of cost at present overlooked or unknown.

On reading over the opinions of the weekly papers on the recent war-scare, I have nothing to add to what has already been said in my previous letters. When the time comes for the dismemberment of the Turkish Empire Germany intends to support Austria in her advance Eastwards, reserving for herself the strictly German provinces of Austria, and perhaps Trieste, or some port on the Mediterranean. Should the three Empires—Russia, Germany and Austria—combine in making another Poland of Turkey we are powerless to prevent them, and the fact seems even dawning on the common jingo mind. The three Empires would be equally powerless against us in Egypt, and particularly if France makes up her mind to make concessions to us in that country in exchange for equivalents in India, Madagascar and on the Congo. Diplomacy seems drifting in that direction, and it means, as far as we are concerned, the eventual annexation of Egypt. Our present meddling policy is hypocritical. An Oriental country must be taken or left alone. It would, perhaps, have been better to have left Egypt alone, and to have trusted to our ships and M. de Lesseps for the protection of our passage through the Red Sea. But the die has been cast. The excuse of the Government is that if we did not take Egypt the French would. Arabi was a convenient scapegoat, and Mr. Goschen and the bondholders, with Mr. Chamberlain and his Birmingham contractors of industrial undertakings in Egypt, stood for excellent lay-figures of public opinion.

The taking of Egypt has been recommended by men of all parties for the last thirty-five years; but it could not be done as long as our "traditional policy" in Turkey existed. By the rise of the German Empire that policy has become non-existent, for Germany, whilst attending to her own interests, will fight our battles for us, and, as a naval Power in the Mediterranean, she will never be a match for France and Italy, and we can hold the balance, or fight all.

Many good people are now airing in the newspapers their interpretations of Scriptural prophecy, and think they see the hand of Providence in the marvellous victory of Tel-el-Kebir, which they look upon as a prelude to the gathering of the tribes. My own hope is, that it is the prelude to the commonsense government of nations and to international fraternity, for present statesmanship in Europe is preparing strifes that will make the world and existing institutions unbearable. Commerce, once styled the hand-maiden of peace, is now the chief offender. Commercial jealousies and commercial legislation have taken the place of Helen of Troy and of military and dynastic ambitions. Whilst commercial jealousy affects evil in foreign politics, the sense of property blinds us in domestic affairs. Sir John Lubbock is a neat, natty, liberal-minded banker, with tastes bordering on the scientific, but he cannot be made to see that Ireland is in any different political position to England.

Mr. Davitt has just made a speech at Bermondsey which, if in some respects objectionble, is in most respects true. He shows what Mr. Gladstone acknowledges and means to remedy—that in regard to the municipal and county government, the magistracy, and many points on which Enblishmen exult as the keystand of their liberties, Ireland is in the position of a conquered dependency instead of being, as it ought to be, part and parcel of the United Kingdom.

The English papers do not answer Mr Davitt; they revile him, and descend to the old retort, that because he takes the part of the starving peasantry of Connemara he is an abettor of murder. Mr. Biggar and some Irish patriots are low and untruthful, but there is nothing even in their speeches more hideous than the vulgar retort of common English newspapers, supporters of Lord Salisbury and others who think Ireland, like the rest of the world, was made for landowners and people of property and respectability.

There is some talk of creating a Ministry of Agriculture, and Sir Charles Dilke has been named for the post. The rumour comes from an agricultural journal, but I have not heard it confirmed.

The Peltzers have been sentenced to death. I send you the particulars of the passing of the sentence. All agree in its justice, but it is acknowledged that the facts of the case are still in many respects obscure. It cannot be understood how mere fraternal affection for Armand should induce the elder Peltzer to commit murder.

GREAT JAMAICA FIRE.

The following particulars of the great fire in the Island of Jamaica will much interest many of our readers, who have probably read of the conflagration without hearing the details. It was without exception one of the greatest of modern fires, almost rivalling that memorable affair which history attributes to Mrs. O'Leary's cow, and which all but destroyed the whole city of Chicago. In the present instance, some 54 squares or blocks of houses in the city of Kingston, containing some 300 houses, were reduced to ashes, and the total loss is estimated at five millions sterling.

The following despatch from the Governor of Jamaica has been received at the Colonial Office:—

King's House, Jamaica, 13th Dec.

My Lord,—

It was my painful duty yesterday to transmit to your lordship the following telegram:—"12th.—Calamitous fire Kingston yesterday; few lives lost; great destruction of property; almost all business portion of city destroyed. Much distress poorer classes; townspeople behaved well; relief needed." This conflagration has indeed been a disaster, from the effects of which I fear that it will be long before the city of Kingston recovers. Time has not yet been afforded to obtain much detailed information, but although many buildings and their contents were probably insured, it is to be feared that numerous others were not, and those chiefly the possession of the poorer classes, of whom numbers have been left absolutely shelterless, and their property is totally destroyed, and they will, it is to be feared, in large measure, be thrown out of employment. I annex a map of a part of the city of Kingston, in which the area of the fire is described in red ink. With some remarkable exceptions, of which the escape is wonderful, the desolation within this area is complete; to large portions I have seen nothing comparable but the ruins of Pompeii; literally nothing is left but cracked and blackened walls. To any one acquainted with the city, it will be obvious at a glance that it includes the chief part of the shops, stores, and merchants' offices and warehouses of Kingston, with the lanes of small dwellings between. The Government buildings and public offices, for the most part placed elsewhere, have been fortunate in almost altogether escaping; but the Ordnance stores and wharf, the property of the Imperial Government, have been entirely destroyed, and the premises of the Colonial Bank have only left of them the quarters of the resident clerk, which are now to be used temporarily as the bank office. Both the Jewish synagogues are burnt, but other places of worship were not within this part of the town, and they are unhurt. The fire began in the middle of the day on the premises of a merchant named Feurtado just to the eastward of a group of Government buildings—the postal telegraph office, the savings bank, the Treasury, the Supreme Court-house, the town-hall, and the post office. Of these the telegraph office and the savings bank have been burned, though all the books and papers have been saved, and the buildings themselves were comparatively of little value. Exertions to protect them were fortunately successful in preserving the more important and more valuable edifices. But the fire spread with marvellous rapidity to the westward between these buildings and the sea, and leaping from roof to roof, covered for the most part with old "shingles", frequently as dry and inflammable as "punk," crossed the streets, driven by the strong sea breeze north-westerly, nearly up to the Jamaica railway station and works. Fortunately for these buildings, before it reached that point the wind changed to the evening land breeze, which unhappily set in unusually early and in great strength, and this pushed the conflagration before it down to the sea.

It was at this time and during the night that the destruction took place of the Ordnance premises and the wharves and waterside warehouses. I was enabled by personal observation to know, what I believe is generally conceded, that there was no lack of water supply for the hydraults and hose, and that the fire brigade did all that was in their power, but it was wholly impossible, with five times their power, to control, in presence of the prevalent high wind, a conflagration which was soon breaking out in half a dozen places at once. Attempts more or less successful were made, however, by pulling down houses and otherwise to arrest the progress of the flames; but such agencies were of little avail, though most willing and valuable assistance was rendered by Commodore Purvis and a party of officers and men from her Majesty's gunboat Foam, who came up from Port Royal and by officers and men from the garrison at Up Park Camp, by the direction of Major-General Gamble and Colonel Wiseman-Clarke. I should add that the deportment of the townspeople, for by far the most part, was surprisingly orderly and quiet during this trying time; and I publicly expressed my sympathy with their distress and satisfaction at their conduct in an extraordinary Gazette of which I enclose a copy. Yesterday a meeting was held in Kingston under the presidency of the Custos of Kingston, Mr Kemble, to devise the best means of relieving the immediate necessities of the shelterless and those without food. I am not yet in possession of all details of what was done, but I am informed that £600 was subscribed in the room at a not very numerous meeting (so many sufferers being engaged by their own affairs), and I had conveyed authority to Mr Kemble to state that, besides my own private subscription, I would place £500 of public money at the disposal of any committee duly organised at the meeting, for the purpose of administering relief, on my personal responsibility, pending a meeting of the Legislative Council. The usual annual Kingston race meeting was to have taken place yesterday and the two following days, but by unanimous consent all intention of holding it was abandoned, and all parties interested in the funds and stakes appropriated for this purpose have agreed in a praiseworthy manner to transfer them all to the relief committee. Some supplies for immediate use, amounting to nearly £2000, will thus be furnished, but I fear much more will be required, and probably, in view of the severity and lamentable character of this disaster, charitable assistance from Great Britain will not be lacking in aid of what can be collected on the spot. If your lordship should not object to the publication of this dispatch in the Times or elsewhere, doing this may be the means of attracting to the subject the attention of the charitably disposed, and especially of those interested in Jamaica.

TRIAL OF THE PELTZERS.

SENTENCE OF DEATH.

Brussels, Friday Night.

Mitre Picard, in defence of Armand Peltzer, urged to-day that the acte d'accusation stated Madame Bernays to be an adulterous woman, whereas the Advocate-General yesterday declared her to be pure; that it stated that Léon knew when at New York of the meditated assassination, whereas the Advocate-General declared yesterday that it was only at Paris that Armand had spoken to Léon on the subject. The counsel then endeavoured to prove other discrepancies. He maintained that Armand was not able to give Léon 15,000 francs. The merchant or the friend at Antwerp who is supposed to have given that sum to Armand was a fiction; he was the Murray of the prosecution. M. Picard then several times called on the Advocate-General to furnish further explanations; but the latter declined, saying that the defence ought to have the last word. Maitre Picard, resuming, showed that the telegram "Marie" was despatched on the 5th of January; the letter by M. Bernays, in which he writes that he will come on the 7th, bears the date of the 6th. How then could Léon inform Armand that Bernays was coming? This telegram could not be from Léon.

Speaking of the impression of a foot in the coagulated blood, the learned counsel so vigorously attacked some of the medical witnesses that the President begged him to be a little more calm. The audience also manifested signs of uneasiness, whereupon Maitre Picard, full of indignation, violently apostrophised le public forcené, who, at any price, wanted the life of Armand.

The President begged the Counsel not to address the public as represented in court, and to cease from attacking witnesses who had given evidence upon oath.

Maitre Picard then eulogised the impartiality of the President, and the audience in the body of the court mockingly laughed at the Counsel.

Hereupon the President threatened to have the court cleared, and the Counsel urged the jury not to allow themselves to be carried away by the ill-feeling of the public.

At this point the Court was invaded by a noisy crowd.

Order having, however, been restored, Maitre Picard resumed, and denied that the impression in the blood had been made by Armand. He further urged that Armand, who was poor, could not have furnished money to Léon, and that the latter acted without premeditation. With the skull of Bernays in his hand, the learned Counsel argued that the version of Léon as to the assassination was the strict truth. The Counsel actually showed by falling twice how M. Bernays must have fallen. "I have reached the end of my task," he at last said.

A sigh of relief was manifest among the auditory, and M. Picard, with great indignation, accused them of gross illfeeling, and then sat down.

Maitre Lejeune then addressed the Court, arguing against the reply of the Advocate-General, and with much eloquence trying to prove the innocence of Armand.

M. Lejeune's speech was finished at a quarter to six o'clock, and the jury retired to consider the questions that had been submitted to them.

At ten minutes past seven the jury returned, and there was immediately a painful silence in court.

The Foreman of the Jury declared that the answers to all the questions as to the guilt of the prisoners was affirmative.

At this the crowd in the body of the court manifested unmistakable satisfaction.

The accused were then introduced, and the Advocate-General demanded the penalty of death.

Léon Peltzer said he would accept his condemnation, and that he deserved it; but he declared the innocence of his brother, who was the victim of a judicial crime.

The gendarmes then forced him to be seated.

On the question from the President if he had anything to say,

Armand exclaimed: "The curse of my daughter on the heads of the Jury!"

Here the crowd in the body of the court raised cries of indignation, and silence had to be insisted on.

The Court then withdrew, and during the interval it was noticed that Armand was pale as death, and was almost stifled with emotion. He seemed to have aged 20 years since the commencement of the trial.

On the return of the Court, Léon and Armand Peltzer were condemned to death, the execution to take place in Brussels. It is well known that this penalty exists in Belgium, but is always commuted.

The condemned men were taken to prison under a strong escort, an enormous crowd in the streets displaying their joy that the two wretched men were condemned.

I learn at the last moment that the prisoners have signed an appeal from the verdict, on the ground of informality, which the counsel for the defence maintain exists in the form of procedure.

USEFUL STATISTICS.

Arroyo Grande, 5th Feb.

Dear Mr. Editor.

I am sorry to observe in your daily of the 28th ult, that only Irishmen are considered fit to utilize the natural advantages that exist in some Provinces of this Republic, such as San Luis. The inference deducible is that the Irish, or descendants, are the Dominant Race of the New World, as the two Continents of North and South America are called. (Pardon my error, it is only one continent.) If the Milesians are really so, is it necessary to blow such a "fanfare" on brazen trumpets?

While rendering all due praise to the Irish nation—in all parts of the world—and for many centuries (save and excepting in their 'natal land'), I must beg leave to hint that there are descendants of other nations who have rendered equal services and would consider it very questionable taste to keep their name continually before the eyes of a public whom, by implication, they look upon as their inferiors. It is not by words alone our countrymen will be known to fame; "but" deeds.

"Brave spirits are a balsam to themselves;
There is a nobleness of mind that heals
Wounds beyond salves."

Unless the Standard has constituted itself the organ of a nation, to the exclusion of all others, it might allow (on sufferance) other immigrants, if willing, to prove their prowess. I am honestly in the belief that a mixture of "all" races is necessary for the advancement—not of one province alone—but of "all."

To the north, the Irish can lay good claim to honorable success, but, how about the south and west? It is notorious that the north—a very very small section of this Republic—is almost entirely in possession of Irishmen (more power to their elbow," and, "may their shadow never be less")—it is also as notorious that, through increase of the inter-marriages and concentration of stock the land is getting worked up: How do you reconcile statements in "Useful Statistics" of 28th ult. with actual facts—that, the Irish are the great, the principal, and the grand promoters of the industries—that their name stands foremost on the Roll of Fame.

It is well known that the largest and most advanced breeders of stock are "not" Irish, and in other industries they do not figure to any great extent. Can you name one Irishman who introduces either cattle, horses, or sheep for improvement of stock? No, señor, they leave that to others who look further ahead. This furious correspondence on the Irish question reminds me of an incident that occurred when Mr Lincoln was President of the U. States. Two rivals for a vacancy in the Post-office so deluged his secretary with petitions in favour of the separate candidates, that he saw the only way to decide on the merits of the two candidates was by weighing the petitions. If that is resorted to in the Irish question, they must gain.

A Subscriber.

[Ed. Note]—We think our correspondent, on some points, has much foundation for his remarks. However, in reply we may say that the largest importer of blood cattle to the Plate, and the man who, it may be said, has established this business, is Mr Nash, who happens accidentally to be an Irishman, as also our friend Mr Kemmis, whose blood stock is the first in the country. In our article on San Luis we happened casually to say how much better would be that province if it had 2000 Irish sheepfarmers from the north. We admit, however, that 2000 English or Scotch from the south would equally help San Luis. The Irish farmers in the north are, however, much nearer to San Luis than the men in the south.

EDITOR'S TABLE

Dull enough was yesterday. The heat was great and reminded us of Tel-el-Kebir, minus the sand and the mosquitos. In Argentine political circles there was a tea-cup tempest about the arrest of Mr Gomez, a gentleman who lately declined the honour of being 'Comandante' at Tapalque, his refusal being couched in terms so far more forcible than polite that the Provincial Government ordered his arrest; but he managed to reach this city, where, however, the Provincial police entered his house on Friday and "boned" him. The city being National territory, a Constitutional question has, of course, arisen, and hence the row. Of course it will lead to nothing more serious than windy leaders in our colleagues; still, the sooner the city of La Plata is made habitable the better.

We have received a very serious communication in reference to the management of the British Hospital in Montevideo, but refrain from publishing details, in the conviction that the Committee will at once take the matter in hand and turn over a new leaf. Things must be going very wrong indeed when a private patient has to be removed from the Hospital, owing to the bad care and attendance he received in it. For the credit of the British community on both sides of the Plate, we trust that the Committee of the Hospital will at once institute a sweeping reform in its internal working.

The annual verification of the fineness of the different coins turned out by the Mint, or what in England is termed the Trial of the Pyx, will take place in the beginning of the week. The examination of the coins reserved for the purpose, and which are taken at hazard from every lot manufactured, will be conducted by a committee of scientific and commercial gentlemen, among whom we observe mentioned Messrs. Parodi, Puiggari, J. Clark, Agote, Godoy and others, the Minister of Finance, Dr Romero, being the President.

We remark that our great London colleague the Times has made a reform in the mode of announcing Births, which now run in its columns so:—"April 1st, the wife of A Foole, Esq.—son." Our readers will perceive that the words "of a" are omitted, which, in a long column, involves a greater saving of time and type than the general public can be aware of. We hope our great contemporary will next turn its attention to the "Matched" and "Despatched." In the first there is often a deal too much of chastened Jingoism in telling us that the fair bride is the great-grandaughter of the late Sir Something Somebody, or rather Nobody (probably a full-blown city Knight); and in the latter all sensible people would rejoice at the abolition of the idiotic formula "deeply regretted by a wide circle of friends." A man's own family are the very worst judges as to what those whom they are pleased to call his "wide circle of friends" really think of him, and it would be safer and in better taste not to publicly claim a regret which, in nine cases out of ten, does not exist. We hope, therefore, that the "Thunderer" wont confine its reforms to the Births.

Measles are raging to an epidemic extent in Barracas, nearly all the sufferers being children. Small-pox is also very bad in most parts of town, the little ones being also its chief victims.

There was a serious snag-up on the Northern Railway yesterday morning at Belgrano, where an up-train managed to get off the track while shunting, part of it remaining on the down and the rest on the up line. This, and the fact that a single train happened to be late some days ago, has given our 'juvenile confreres,' the 'cronistas,' another opportunity for renewing their dreary and unfounded attacks on the line, supplemented with indecorous reference to the "Shade of Crabtree!" The Northern Railway is excellently managed by Mr Shaw, and it is simply impossible to foresee and prevent accidents.

A Pennsylvania inventor has evolved a new rat-trap, in one end of which is a mirror. This may do for the female rats, but when a male rat notices that the bait looks doubtful he will think he has had enough and go home.

We find the following in the Times: "Just now it is endeavoured to make capital of a trial which took place last October at Buenos Ayres. The facts which caused the trial are rather interesting. In August, 1881, an anonymous letter announced to the exceedingly wealthy Dorrego family of Buenos Ayres that the coffin with the body of Madame Dorrego, who had died a short time before, had been carried away from the family vault at the cemetery of the 'Recoleta.' Twenty-four hours were given to the family for depositing at a place indicated in the letter a million of piastres if they wished to avoid the profanation of the body. An investigation showed that the body had been carried off by a gang of criminals known as 'Los Caballeros de la Noche' (the Knights of the Night). The gang was arrested, and it was found that its chief was a Belgian, who had been sentenced in February, 1874, at Bruges, to 10 years' imprisonment for burglary and robbery of 85,000f. at the house of M. de Teneranda, at St. Michel, near Bruges. To avoid being taken he had gone to La Plata, and called himself there De Teneranda, the very name of the person whom he had robbed, and who was a relative of his. His real name is Marie Joseph Louis Alphonse de Kerckhove, and he is of a very respectable family belonging to the Clerical party. He and his accomplices were sentenced at Buenos Ayres on the 30th of last October to six years' imprisonment."

A young man from the country was "come over" in Montevideo by two "mascaritas" who gave him such a dose of vitriol in the face that the doctors despair of saving his eyesight. Vitriol throwing, by jealous women, is a European emigrant we can well dispense with in the Plate, and we are sorry to note this case.

One of the papers published some sensational news yesterday about the recent rumpus in Montevideo, saying that Governor Rocha had a hand in it. We consider this a mistake. The real Simon Pure in the affair is Ketewayo.

The Jones-Berwyn affair has ended most happily, thanks to the sound views of the Minister of the Interior, who has had the happy thought of winding up the whole thing with a most appropriate Welsh joke. His decree putting an amicable end to the matter is evidently based on the for-ever famous verdict of the Welsh jury, "not guilty, but we recommend the prisoner not to do it again." All's well that ends well. We see that Messrs Jones and Berwyn have written to the Nacion explaining the three principal charges in the Comisario's report—1st the charge of mutiny, 2nd the non-attendance of the children at the National School, 3rd the proportion of colonists that can read and write. Of 500 of the male colonists there are only 39 who cannot read and write; and only 28 women, out of 350.

The Rt. Rev. Dr. Stirling, Bishop of the Falklands, will leave town for Rosario to-morrow.

A list of subscriptions to the cost of the album which the grateful citizens are about to present to the Lord Mayor, lies at our office for signature. Mr Alvear well deserves the compliment, and the subscription will certainly be large.

To avoid a repetition of yesterday's assault on our office by parties anxious to buy "five-dollar sheep," we beg to say that we have none for sale, and that, when they call again on the subject, there will be neither sherry nor sandwiches on the table. Lunch for a dozen especially when there are a few new subscribers among them, is nothing, but lunch for 117 people is the reverse of a joke.

We wish Fate had put an ivory hammer into our hand instead of a pen, as a means of keeping the wolf from the door. During 1882 Messrs Baltar & Quesada earned commission on the sale of real estate to the tune of 544 millions currency, to say nothing of what they made on live stock. The best business in the Plate is auctioneering.

Dn Mariano Saavedra's remains were interred yesterday in the most private manner, as laid down in his will, only his immediate family being present.

There is a farewell Carnival ball at the Progreso Club to-night. The "jolgorio" in connection with the burial of Carnival begins at 6 o'clock, we believe, but are not quite sure.

The deacon's son was telling the minister about the bees stinging his pa, and the minister inquired: 'Stung your pa, did they? Well, what did your pa say?' "Step this way, a moment," said the boy, "I'd rather whisper it to you."—Chicago Chronicle.

The best article published in the Madrid papers, on the death of Gambetta, was from the brilliant pen of Hector Varela. There is a rumour that our talented quondam colleague intends to return to the Plate soon and reenter the Editorial Bus.

The highly esteemed Revd. James Smith will soon hand over his charge of the Scotch Church to the Revd. Mr Fleming and leave for his native land. His legions of friends are now subscribing, to present him with a parting gift, and we have a list in our office for signature. We feel certain that the subscriptions will not be confined to Scotchmen, or members of the venerated clergyman's congregation, as he never confined his charity and innumerable good deeds to them, but extended them to all creeds and nationalities, and the time has now come to give him a fitting return.

We return our best thanks for the copy of Dr Gould's "Anales Meteorologicos Argentinos" which we received yesterday. It's a terribly technical volume, but a splendid illustration of the vast labours and talent of the distinguished savan who directs the National Observatory.

GAMBETTA.

Gambetta did not care for the suffrages of the ignorant and disorderly; when he had tasted official life, when he had mixed with foreign Ambassadors, foreign Kings and Princess, it became his ambition to be the ruler of a Republic in which all sorts and conditions of men could live at ease—deposed Sovereigns, Dukes, and cardinals, as well as others. It flattered him to be invited to dinner by the King of Greece, and to receive the Prince of Wales at his table. It was owing to him that the Empress Eugénie, after her son's death, obtained permission to enter France and sojourn there as often as she pleased. During his Proconsulate at Tour, hearing that the Prince de Joinville and Duc the de Chartres were serving in the Republican armies under assumed names, he sent M. Arthur Ranc to the elder Prince with instructions to request his Royal Highness "deferentially" to leave French ground until the degree of banishment voted against him 1848 should be lawfully revoked; but he allowed the Duc de Chartres (who was serving under the name of Robert Lefort) to remain, and he caused him not only to be decorated with the Legion of Honour, but to be promoted by rapid steps to a captaincy.

Ayer's Hair Vigour
(A DESIDERATUM)

For restoring the Natural Vitality and Colour of the Hair.

Prepared according to scientific and physiological bases with the object of bettering the condition of the hair, it stimulates the enfeebled glands of the scalp into healthy action, arrests the falling of the hair and promotes its luxuriant growth; rendering it soft, youthful and glossy.

This excellent preparation, the best and without doubt the only one as a remedial agent for the many defects and diseases to which the hair is subject, calls for and merits the most serious attention of all those who have had the misfortune to lose partially this most beautiful and natural ornament. AYER'S HAIR VIGOUR employed intelligently has obtained really surprising results. Faded or grey hair it restores to its original colour; and lost hair is often, but not always, reproduced.

It has always PREVENTED FALLING of the hair; whilst as a dressing ladies say it is the most agreeable as it is the most beneficent. Containing neither dye nor oil, it does not soil the finest cambric.

ON 'CHANGE.

Feb. 10th, 1883

Patacon	25.01
Cedulas E	84⅝
National Bank Shares	104½
National 6 o/o	70¼

The market opened this morning with a bullish feeling and rates went up slightly. The rising firmness of the market is attributed to purchases by those who tried to bear the market yesterday and the day before. Favorable rumors were also spread with reference to the new proposal submitted to the Board of the National Bank for advances on the Bonds given by the Government. It appears that there is a slight hitch about the Commission in the contract. The bulls consider that the whole matter is in a favorable state and that it will be settled next week.

On Monday the new shares of the National Bank will be delivered, on a careful revision of the list. It seems that the total of the cash shares to come on the market will not exceed two thousand shares, which is a mere fleabite for the market. As the impression in the market yesterday was, that 7,000 new shares cash will come next week on the market, when the real number was known a better feeling existed in the share business. Some parties are known to have sold short for very large amounts, and these shares will have to be bought back. Money at present rules so easy in the market that the bulls will have no difficulty in carrying shares at the end of the month.

Mr. W. H. Smith, cashier of the River Plate Telegraph Company, leaves to-morrow in the Flaxman on a short leave of absence. We wish him a pleasant trip to Europe, and hope to see him soon back.

H.M.S. Rifleman leaves on Tuesday for Montevideo.

The market opened at 104½ for cash and for the end of the month: 1450 shares were sold for the latter date, rates closing at 104¾. The bulk of operations was effected at 104½. Four hundred shares were sold "disponible" for the end of the month at 104¾. Operations for cash are very limited, only 12 shares changed hands. Operations during official hours embraced close on 2000 shares.

A few thousand National 6 o/o were sold this morning at 70½.

Seventy thousand Lanus Deposit Bonds were sold yesterday at $70¾ ex-dividend. These Bonds bear 6 o/o interest.

Several thousand patacons gold were done to-day at 25.01-00½. There are sellers in the market at 25.01

Cedulas ruled excessively dull this morning. No sales were effected in Series A. Twenty-five thousand Series E were sold for the end of the month at 84⅝, and 28,000 for the 12th inst. at 84⅝-½. The market rules weaker than yesterday.

The money market shews no change. Gold discounts are quoted at 6½ o/o, and paper at 3 o/o and above. Exchange rules very dull and little doing.

The sales at the ring were as follows:—

Cedulas—
For cash E 4,150 at 84⅝
For Feb. 12th E 25,000 at 84⅝-½
For Feb. 28th E 28,000 at 84½
Sales, 57,150

National Bank Shares—
For cash 12 at 104½
For Feb. 28th 1,450 104½-¾
Do 100 E at 104½
Do 400 D at 104¾
Sales, 1,962

National Bonds, 1881, 5 o/o—
For cash 4,800 at 70½

Mr. E. Nolte, so well-known in this market, leaves on Monday in the Argentina for Fatherland. He will return before the end of the year.

Several leading merchants and brokers are anxious to know where sheep can be bought at $5 ⅝ by the cut. One party who is neither a banker nor a merchant, is willing to buy 10,000 at the rate.

Arrivals of wool continue on a limited scale, and the bulk of arrivals consists of very inferior qualities. Operations rule dull.

Arrivals of wheat in the markets are daily becoming larger, and prices rule weak. A business was done to-day at rates under $90 ⅝, supposed to be for export.

In re Laferrer v. Lanus the Courts have decided against the latter, condemning same to payment of $13,000 and costs. Our young friend Mr. Alfredo Fernandez was Mr. Laferrer's lawyer and deserves much credit for the able manner in which he conducted the suit.

Linseed is arriving in small quantities; the crop will be only middling, owing to the late drawback experienced in the camp and to the ravages of the "ysoka" and locusts. About 10,000 bags of the new crop have been exported up to date.

Sheepskins are firm and fetch high prices in the South; arrivals are small both in the North and the South.

On 30th January, the directors and shareholders of the Bank of Paraguay held their first meeting. We have not seen the report, but judging by the dividend declared, the bank must be doing a very capital business; a dividend of 3.50 pats per share of 25 pats paid up was declared, and 10 per cent passed to the reserve fund. The amount of notes in circulation is 200,000 pats. This shows well for this new concern.

It may interest many on the Flores Road to know that for a small site, facing the Portela Lagos, some 26x100, an offer of 11,000 ⅝ per vara front has been declined by the owner of the site; this is about the highest price we have heard for property thereabout; the site in question is opposite the Ledesma quinta, and near Caballito.

The Villarino is expected up about Monday. She will not probably leave for Patagones before 20th inst.

A Californian windmill, to work a pump on an estancia in the far South, is now being put up at a barrace in the Boca. It is the first of the kind that has been bought for an estancia, and President Roca will, when it is in working order, go down to the Boca to see it. The object of the windmill is to pump up a large and constant supply of water from a 'jaguel' for the cattle on the land.

Mr. H. Altgelt, in his weekly wheat circular, gives the following:—

"Arrivals of the week:

Wheat	541,799 kilos
Flour	1,899,792 do
Maize	126,502 do
Linseed	49,397 do
Hay	1,004 bales

Besides 9,091 bags of wheat, 1,795 bags of maize and 482 bags of linseed by the Western Railway, the weight of which has not been specified.

"Exports of the week:—

For Antwerp	276,032	kilos of linseed.
Liverpool	3,800	"
Genoa	26,600	"
Marseilles	243,200	"
Total	549,632	"
For Cuba	66,286	kilos bran.
Rio Janeiro	90,440	"
Brazil	12,000	"
Total	168,726	"

2,000 salted ox hides from L. B. Repetto's were sold to-day at 49 rls, weight 64 lbs.

The cargo of lumber of the Mary Agnes, from Portland, has been sold at 7½ rials per superficial foot. This is a good price for the article in view of the actual state of the lumber market. A cargo of lumber was sold the very same day at 6½ to 7 rls per superficial foot. The market thus shows some improvement.

Private advices by the Savoie give details of the failure of a leading Elbeuf manufacturer, who has let in all the other manufacturers in the district for amounts ranging between 200,000 and 300,000 francs. The liabilities are estimated at 3,000,000 francs. The situation of the wool market continues very critical and no demand visible for middling qualities of wool. The yield of the middling wools has been very unfavourable.

In the South and Once Markets large lots of bad and inferior wools are constantly sent to deposit, and the "acopiadores" have lost as heavily this year as in 1878.

A German firm entered the wheat market in the Once to-day and bought two lots of Bragada wheat at 87 ⅝.

Good wheat is in demand for consumption at fair rates. A fine lot from the Lix Klett's fine chacra in Pardo was sold to-day at 101 ⅝. Also some colza at 12½ ⅝ per arrobe. This is the highest price paid for colza this year. The wheat from Pardo was much admired; the article is clean and the fine quality uniform.

The Nacion of to-day contained a very ably written leader about the Sheepskins' ears revision; all the papers, native and foreign, condemn this 'ordenanza;' the Nacion says that skins belonging to Manuel Ocampo and Vicente Casares have been confiscated; we could give a lot of more names, but we think the two mentioned are sufficient to show how ridiculous the measure is.

In freights we still note a firm tendency: 25s and 10 per cent being maintained by regular steamers; two outsiders, Italian, are engaging at cheaper rates. As regards sailing vessels, two Italians have been chartered to load linseed for a German firm, and two others wheat at San Lorenzo (River Parana). It is also reported that a small vessel has been taken up to load salted hides at Tuyu, and another for tallow from Paysandu; the rates are reserved but show a rise.

Several important linseed contracts are being made; some have already been effected at reserved rates.

At afternoon a sudden turn took place in the market and National Bank Shares went up to 105. The market closed at 104¾ for the end of the month. Operations were limited.

The sales at afternoon were:—

La clase del campo y las circunstancias de baratura en la base de venta, asi como las con diciones inmejorables de la tierra hacen que recomendemos a los Srs Agricultores el lindo lote de campo que ofrecemos. Es tambien aparente para ovejas, tiene 4 buenas piezas de material, varios ranchos, y una buena laguna de rica agua.

Linda este campo por el N. E. con los herederos de Planes y Ferrer, por el Sud E. con los Srs. Buchanan, Barreiro y otros, al S. O. con Mongiardini, Brown, Maxwell y Scarella, y al N. O. con los Srs Martinez, Mongiardini y Brown.

El campo es rico y bien conocido. Despues de la venta del mismo, venderemos una gran parva de rica alfalfa, producto del mismo campo.

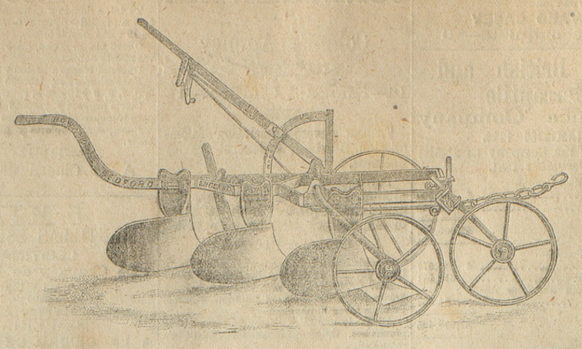
"PLOUGHS"



"PLOUGHS" "PLOUGHS"

Messrs M. Forrester & Co.

Beg to announce to the Public that they have lately introduced into this country with great success the

Celebrated Two and Three Furrow Ploughs of Messrs. HOWARD ENGLAND

These WROUGHT IRON PLOUGHS fitted with breasts and shares of steel, have been extensively used in the Provinces and are destined to supersede the light and flimsy wood implements made by the Americans.

By means of a simple hand lever the onward movement of the animals raises the plough out of work at the ends, thus saving the driver the usual hard lifting connected with ploughing.

The two Furrow Plough is drawn by a pair of bullocks, thus doing double the work of a single plough and still with only one man.

These "Multiple" Ploughs are now almost universally employed in Australia and South Africa, and in recommending these implements Messrs. Forrester & Co feel confident that they are well adapted to the requirements of the Plate.

In order to procure these Ploughs orders should be sent in at once, or disappointment may be incurred.
